St. Johns, Thursday, May 28.

A False Plea.

One of the objections urged by the Mormons against the Edmunds law is that it is ex post facto, and operates to break up marriages and family relations that were formed before it was enacted, and when there was no statute prohibiting polygamy. It so happens, however, that as long ago as 1862, Congress passed an act declaring that "every person having a husband or wife living who marries another, whether married or single, in a territory, shall be deemed guilty of bigamy, and be punished by fine and imprisonment." And even before this, there was a strict anti-polygamy law in force in Utah, as a part of the legal system established there by Mexico and continued by treaty provisions until repealed or modified on the part of the United States. There has been no time, therefore, since the Mormons went to Utah, that polygamy was not forbidden by law, and the Edmunds act does not, in any sense, tend to punish people for acts which were committed under innocent conditions.—Globe Democrat.

Three of a Kind.

Three polygamous Mormons were yesterday sentenced to imprisonment. All three were defiant and refused to promise obedience to the law, and this rebellious sentiment was applauded by the Mormons assembled in the court room. The aggressive spirit of the Mormons portends trouble. It will not be an easy matter to fully enforce the law, and the United States troops may have to go to Utah to give the Mormons a little information touching the duties of a citizen of this country. It would be unfortunate if it should be necessary to kill two or three thousand of these lustful devils; but it might have its value as an example.—Denver Tribune-Republican.

The Colored Troops.

Several of our contemporaries are making great ado because colored troops are to be stationed at several posts in Arizona, and before the despised negroes set foot in the territory they were accused of all sorts of immorality. It is further asserted that the Apaches have no fear of the negroes, but are they any more afraid of white soldiers? The moral tone of the United States army is low, but the negro soldiers are not a whit worse than their white brethren. The army has always been a disturbing influence in Arizona and has never proven of any value in restraining the Indians.—Globe Silver Belt.

Georgetown Miner: An Editor at Idaho Springs was dying, but when the doctor placed his ear to the patient's heart and said, "his circulation is almost gone," he raised himself up and gasped, "Tis false, we have the largest circulation of any paper in Clear Creek county." Then he sank back and died, after having first demonstrated the ruling passion, (lying about circulation,) strong in death.

A new move has been made on the part of the cattlemen in the northern part of the Texas Panhandle. They have prevented the driving of Southern Texas cattle over their ranges. A herd passing northward was stopped at Tascosa, on the Canadian river, by the Sheriff, acting under a writ in trespass, and the matter has been carried into the courts with the intention of making a test case.

The Mormons of Idaho are bolder and more desperate than their Utah brethren. Some of them have forcibly prevented the arrest of one of their number, indicted for polygamy, by the U. S. Marshal. It would simplify the Mormon question if all polygamists would act in the same way as those of Idaho. Armed rebellion is easier and more effectually quelled than moral rebellion like that practiced all the time in Utah.—Record-Epiph.
